Press Release: The Convention People's Party (CPP) and the Chairperson Triumph in High Court Ruling

In a decisive victory for democracy and the rule of law, the Convention People's Party (CPP) is pleased to announce that the High Court has ruled in Favour of our party, dismissing an action brought against the Chairperson and Leader of the Party.

This landmark decision also prohibits any attempts to unlawfully restrain the Chairperson from executing her duties, effectively upholding the integrity of our party's leadership and governance.

The action, which sought the removal of our esteemed Chairperson and Leader, was found by the court to be unauthorized by the CPP's Central Committee—the operating mind of our party. Furthermore, the court recognized that the plaintiffs attempted to misuse the judicial system to perpetrate an injustice, and declared that the interim council, set up by certain individuals, is not a legitimate organ of the CPP.

This victory is not just for the CPP but for the democratic process and the rule of law in our country. It reaffirms the principles of rightful leadership and the importance of internal party democracy and governance.

The CPP was represented pro bono by Merton & Everett LLP, with Jamaldeen Tonzua as counsel on record, Oliver Barker-Vormawor as Lead Counsel and 1st Chair, and Selikem Donkor as Supporting Counsel and 2nd Chair. Their professionalism, dedication, and expertise were instrumental in securing this win, and we extend our deepest gratitude to them for their exceptional service.

This ruling is a testament to the strength of our legal system and its capacity to uphold justice and fairness. The CPP remains committed to our values of democracy, justice, and integrity, and we will continue to work tirelessly for the betterment of our party and our country.
